Die unkupierte Rute
des Rottweilers

LEHR-TAFEL 5

Great interest was stimulated by our recent Rottweiler feature and this was forwarded to us by some concerned readers who felt our examples of the acceptable tails were not wide ranging enough. What a shame it was not sent in time to be included in the Feature.

We had of course checked the wording of the current FCI Standard and on the downloadable PDF from the ADRK it states: TAIL: In natural condition, level in extension of the upper line; at ease may be hanging.

There is no illustration on the ADRK site although we do understand there is in fact a reference to it there in German. By publishing it we are delighted to be able to do a service for all interested people due to the extensive readership of National DOG world wide in both print and online.

With all due respect, we also feel that what has been translated as a SABLE tail in the English version surely should in fact be a sabre tail - a world of difference and a term completely understood by all competent judges, unless the translation is meant to be to that of a sable fur bearing creature, which is unlikely.
